Excerpt from An Account of the Controversy in the First Parish in Cambridge: 1827-1829 There are ministers designated as liberal, who are decidedly of the opinion, that an exchange with ministers of the original principles Of the New England churches is not advisable. Such exchanges have been sometimes found unacceptable and injurious. Exception has been taken to a discourse, delivered by a minister of preeminent character for theological learning and talents, orthodoxy and charity, on an exchange with a minister denominated liberal; and the preacher has been interrogated upon the subject in the broad aisle, before he had left the church in which he had per formed the service.
