B. Scott, of West Virginia, in the Senate of the United States, Tuesday, June 5, 1900 This, Mr. President, is but a brief summary of our duty to the islanders, but in a larger and more comprehensive sense obligations, international in character, arise that we ought not to escape if we could and could not if we would. The moment that Dewey's victory at Manila was announced it was known that Spanish dominion and authority in that part of its territory was virtually at an end, and other nations had the right to look to us for the assumption of governmental control of the islands. If these duties and responsibilities did not then arise, certainly they did thereafter when Spain formally ceded to us this territory. To say that we should not have gone there, that we have no right there now, that it is contrary to the fundamental principles of this Government, is to beg the whole question. We did go there. And we were there as the result of the declaration of war against the power that then owned the islands, and we went there because we believed it to be a point where we could successfully meet the enemy. The result has proved the wisdom of the course taken. And now, having succeeded, it can not be that we are under no obligations to anyone by reason of the position in which we find ourselves.
